NRCS

Robin went over each of the 2014 Agricultural Act Programs described on her report.

Nebraska Forest Service
Doak Nickerson

Doak gave a brief update on the forestry field meeting that was held at the Legion club in Chadron, NE. They discussed how to deal with all of the trees and branches knocked down after October blizzard. They discussed grinding trees as the alternative to burning trees. The City of Alliance allowed them to use their tree grinder. Doak discussed how the problem was dealt with up in Rapid City, SD.

The forest service is looking to get a grant from NDEQ to take care of the trees in Chadron, NE. They are hoping to use the tree grinder to take care of the trees which would then create high quality mulch. They also discussed the possibility of burning this mulch at Chadron State College, but this was not possible because the college is only permitted for ponderosa pine and this would be a mixture of different wood, they also do not want to infringe in the chip contractor that supplies the college, and the final reason for not using Chadron State College is because after grinding the trees there was a small amount of metal that came out in the process and this would not be good for the boilers at Chadron State College.

Nebraska Game and Parks Commission
Shelley Steffl

Shelley discussed the programs that the Game and Parks had to offer. The Crop Stubble Management, Wildlife and Water Conservation Program allowed for 50,000 acres of tall stubble left for wildlife. The Nebraska Game & Parks Commission will pay the land owner $10 per acre for tall stubble and as the allocation from last year was not met there are extra acres available this year. Shelley passed out a brochure discussing this program.

Shelley discussed was the Wildlife Friendly Fencing Incentive. This program offers land owners up to $1000 per mile for any new fence or reconstructed fence that follows the wildlife friendly guidelines. This program has enough funding to go for up to 50 miles.

The Wild Nebraska program in which they were allocated $75,000 that will not be split up by NRD's, it will be first come first serve as to make sure the allocation does not go to waste. Game and Parks Commission staff will sit down with the UNWNRD to discuss further plans for this program and others.

Concerned Groundwater Users
Presentation by Andy Curd

Andy Curd discussed the 2014 observation well measurements, the density of irrigation development among the ground water sub-areas, and the historical relationship between irrigation, precipitation and groundwater. Mr. Curd used information provided to him by the UNWNRD to put together his research for his presentation. After the presentation Mr. Curd asked the members of the board to reconsider the allocation, stating that precipitation recharges the aquifer and has a larger effect on the ground water supply than irrigation does. After his presentation he asked for other comment from the public group in participation at the meeting.

Other concerned groundwater users then added their comments including the need for more accurate water measurements by means of electronic water measurement tools. Sheri Daniels mentioned that the NRD uses two electronic measurement tools to take measurements of the groundwater supply. Other comments regarding the supply of ground water included the existence of wells that are more than 100 years old that are still being used today.

Ken Frey, who lives in the sand hills south of Hay Springs, NE, mentioned that farmers cannot raise higher quality crops on the allocation limit of 15 inches. He also mentioned that there was no waste of water in irrigation because all the water used would then return to groundwater. There was also mention that not all of the sub areas would need to be regulated the same.

Fred Hagman mentioned that this allocation proposal has already made groundwater users more conscious of how they use water and to do a better job of conserving it but that he still didn't believe the allocation was necessary.

After all public comments had concluded Tod Dorshorst mentioned that Ken Frey who had stood up against the allocation was originally on board with the allocation in the sub areas of 4 and 6 but now that the allocation was going to affect his sub area he was against it. Tod stated that this allocation was being done as a preventative measure for the other sub areas.
